If your company directly* purchased Traditional Blood Reagents in the United States, you may be entitled to a substantial payment resulting from a class action lawsuit.

In re: Blood Reagents Antitrust Litigation, MDL Docket No. 09-2081

Settlement Fund: $41,500,000

Period of Claim: January 1, 2001 through October 19, 2015

Filing Deadline: February 20, 2019

Summary: The lawsuit alleges the Defendants conspired to raise and fix the prices of blood reagents, and as a result of this alleged conspiracy, the price paid by companies or entities to certain traditional blood reagents manufacturers were higher than they otherwise would have been.

Eligibility: Companies or entities that purchased traditional blood reagents in the United States on or after January 1, 2001 through October 19, 2015 directly* from either of the Defendants.

“Blood Reagents” are immunohematology products designed and manufactured to test, match, detect, screen, diagnose and/or otherwise identify certain properties of the cell and serum components of human blood. Traditional Blood Reagents are blood reagents that are primarily used to test blood manually in test tubes. Proprietary Blood Reagents are blood reagents that are primarily used to test blood in automated and/or semi-automated platforms. Proprietary Reagents sold by Defendants include, but are not limited to, Ortho’s IDMTS gel products and Immucor’s Capture products. The term “Blood Reagents” includes Traditional Blood Reagents and Proprietary Blood Reagents, as well as Ortho’s 0.8% red blood cell reagents.

Defendants: Immucor, Inc.; and Ortho-Clinical Diagnostics, Inc.

* Purchased and made payment directly to the Defendants and not to a broker or distributor. Purchases via a broker, distributor, or another party would constitute an indirect purchase.
