If your company Indirectly purchased Optical Disk Drives (ODDs) or products containing ODDs in the United States, from any of the defendants listed below, you may be entitled to a substantial payment resulting from a class action lawsuit.

In re Optical Disk Drive Antitrust Litigation, Master File No. 3:10-cv-2143 RS

SETTLEMENT FUND: Currently $205M

PERIOD OF CLAIM: April 2003 – December 2008

FILING DEADLINE: June 28, 2019

SUMMARY: Settlements have been reached in a class action lawsuit alleging that a group of electronics companies engaged in a conspiracy to fix the prices of optical disk drives. These settlements affect indirect purchasers of optical disk drives that purchased Sony, Hitachi-LG Data Storage, Panasonic Corp. and NEC Corp. Products.

Optical Disk Drives (ODD) are devices that allow data to be read from and/or written to optical disks including DVD-RW, DVD Rom or Combo drives.

Note: These settlements only involve indirect purchasers of optical disk drives. Indirect means that you did not buy the ODD product directly from any of the defendants, but from a retail store, supplier or some other seller.

ELIGIBILITY: Class members of the indirect purchaser optical disk drive settlement include residents of Arizona, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wisconsin who, between April 2003 and December 2008, purchased (for their own use and not for resale) one or more of the following products manufactured by one or more of the defendants or their alleged coconspirators: A computer with an internal optical disk drive; a stand-alone disk drive designed for internal use in computers; or an optical disk drive designed to be attached externally to a computer.

Note: Purchases of Panasonic-brand computers are not covered by this class action settlement.
